DECEMBER 10, 2025

General Rubric

A+ (Outstanding/Almost Perfect)

- Matches the suggested solutions closely or if different, all arguments are technically correct.
- Demonstrates complete understanding of the concepts, with clear and logical reasoning.
- Contains no significant mistakes; explanations are precise and thorough.

A (Excellent)

- Shows a highly accurate and well-reasoned approach, capturing nearly all key ideas.
- Minor errors, if present, are insignificant or do not undermine the main logic.
- Demonstrates strong mastery of the relevant concepts.

A- (Very Good)

- Overall correct approach and methodology with small gaps or slightly unclear steps.
- Some minor errors or omissions, but the core solution remains strong.
- Exhibits solid understanding and application of the material.

B+ (Good)

- Correct in most of the critical steps, but may contain one or two moderate oversights.
- Shows understanding of the material, though some details or justifications may be missing.
- Reasoning is generally coherent, albeit with occasional lapses.

B (Above Average)

- Addresses the major components of the problem correctly but has noticeable errors or gaps.
- May miss some finer points of theory or application.
- The logic is mostly sound, yet lacking in detail or clarity in parts.

B- (Slightly Above Satisfactory)

- Demonstrates a partially correct approach, but with clear errors that affect important parts of the solution.
- Shows some grasp of the concepts, though not consistently.
- Needs more rigorous justification or correction of flawed steps.

C+ (Satisfactory)

- Displays a basic understanding of the problem, hitting some of the main points.
- Several important inaccuracies or missing pieces compromise the overall solution.
- Indicates familiarity with the topic but lacks thoroughness and precision.

C (Adequate)

- Offers a superficial or incomplete solution that leaves significant concepts underdeveloped.
- Shows some correct reasoning, but large portions are incorrect or missing.
- May demonstrate partial knowledge but fails to integrate or apply it effectively.

C- (Below Adequate)

- Presents a weak attempt: some scattered correct ideas appear, but errors overwhelm clarity.
- Lacks a coherent flow; key steps are incomplete or incorrect.
- Suggests limited understanding and insufficient effort in addressing the problem fully.

D+ (Poor)

- Contains few correct elements or only the bare beginnings of a proper solution.
- Multiple serious misconceptions; the main line of reasoning is largely flawed.
- Minimal demonstration of understanding, though it shows some effort.

D (Very Poor)

- Offers little more than stray fragments of relevant information.
- Demonstrates minimal comprehension of the problem's requirements.
- Very weak reasoning overall, with significant confusion.

F (Failing)

- Blank, incomprehensible, or entirely off-topic response.
- Shows virtually no understanding of the concepts.
- Fails to demonstrate any meaningful engagement with the problem.
