Students may discuss homework problems with other students taking the course and with the instructor. Students may use their class notes, recommended textbooks and all material on the course Moodle web page. No other resources may be used. The work that you turn in should always be your own write-up, and you should show that you personally understand everything that you write. Any suspected instance of academic dishonesty will be reported to the appropriate academic authorities and be subjected to the maximum possible penalty permitted under University guidelines as detailed in the NU Student Code of Conduct.
