Instructions: The exam has a total of 160 points. The exam starts at 16:00 and finishes at 18:00. Up to 30 additional minutes may be granted depending on demand and stamina.

This exam is about rigorous thinking, not vibes. I am not expecting perfection, but I do expect structure. At a minimum, you should present a clear and organized sketch of your argument, even if you cannot complete every detail. A well-structured partial solution is far more valuable than an unorganized collection of ideas.

One problem solved well is worth much more than a scattered attempt at everything. Choose wisely and commit. The only exception is Problem 5: the last item can be solved if you understand what the earlier parts are doing, even if you were not able to fully complete them.

Please be organized and write legibly. Do not just present computations—explain what you are doing in complete sentences. Make your reasoning easy to follow. Cross anything you do not want me to consider. Help me help you.

If something does not work out, do not apologize on paper. Do not be sorry. Be better.

Write your solutions on the provided paper and number each page you use. Fill out this cover sheet with your name and ID and submit it together with your solutions. I will staple your answers to the cover sheet.

Please return the exam booklet together with your answers. I will collect all copies while grading is in progress so that everyone can stay focused on the course rather than overthinking the exam. Trust your work and move forward.
